

Relaxed Regulations (e.g., on Weather Vendors) for Improved Domestic Investment Conditions

- The Weather Vendor Program, introduced in 1997, allows businesses to market weather products to users whose specific needs cannot be met by the Korea Meteorological Administration (KMA).
- Since the October 2008 designation of 「Fostering the Meteorology/Climate Industry」 as one of the top 100 national agenda items of the Lee Myung-Bak Administration, KMA has been contemplating a number of measures to foster the industry, one of which was to allow weather forecast by businesses.
- The enactment of the 「Meteorological Industry Promotion Act」 (promulgated on June 9, 2009; to be enforced from Dec 10, 2009) will make it possible for businesses to provide forecast products to the general public. In anticipation of any problems that the private sector may face in providing these services, KMA set concrete criteria for personnel qualifications and facilities, which were discussed at a forum for the research community, the industry, the media, and civil organizations. In addition, KMA has been working to minimize potential issues by studying the precedents of advanced countries with similar experiences.
